The House of Lords is a magnificent and beautifully decorated "gilded Chamber"; it is 90 feet long, 45 feet wide and 45 feet high. There are round the hall twelve splendid stained-glass windows with portraits of the Kings and Queens of England, and in the niches between them are statues of the barons who compelled King John to sign the "Magna Charta."

I hope you will like this me.

Thanks for the lovely cutting of poetry.
It is comforting to know, that beyond
Bethanians, there is Paradise, for all

who take their hour of trial in the same spirit,
as He did. We suffer that others
may be happy.
I hope your father
will be much better
